

Rights Round Table Newsletter 9

We talked about Hospital Passports.

They can be used to make hospital visits easier for people with learning disabilities and/or autism.

Hospital Passports include important information about a person:

- Personal details.
- Health conditions and medication.
- Their needs, including about how they communicate.
- What they like and don't like.

Doctors and Nurses read them to learn more about patients, and make reasonable adjustments if they need them.

We looked at different examples of Hospital Passports. Some looked easier to fill in than others.

You can download your own hospital passport on the Skills for People website.

Our group members said...

“I’ve never had a Hospital Passport but would like to fill one in in case I need it.”

“Hospital Passports are good if the medical staff need to know loads about you, but you aren’t feeling well enough to tell them everything.”

“I think every Hospital Passport should be in easy read, so everyone can understand it.”

Our next Zoom meeting is on Monday 25th January, 2.30pm – 3.30pm.
